Victory Certain To Come; Churchill Lauds Soviet And Other Allies

LONDON, May 16—Prime Minister Winston Churchill declared today that "it would be premature to say we have topped the ridge but we see the ridge ahead now."

Speaking before an assemblage in a northeast England community, the prime minister said:

"The United Nations will come to the top of the ridge."

"Then we will have the chance not only of beating down and subduing those evil forces which twice let ruin and havoc on the world, but also the further grander prospect beyond the smoke of battle and the confusion of the fight."

He paid tribute to the fighting forces of Russia.

"The noble manhood of Russia," he said, "now is at full grips with the murderous enemy, striking blow for blow and repaying better ones for the blows struck at them."

Confidence Expressed

He felt confident, he said, that American and Australian forces would defeat the Japanese menace to the commonwealth.

"We send our warmest message of good will and comradeship to our kith and kin in Australia, who, like ourselves are under the menace of imminent enemy attack and who, like ourselves, are going to strike a heavy and successful blow."

UNCLE SAM READY TO CALL MEN OVER 35 TO SERVICE

TWO-WEEK PLAN FOR FURLOUGHS STARTS JUNE 15

Most Of War Effort For Next Year Will Be On Shoulders Of Youths

3-A WILL BE DIVIDED

Registrants Deferred For Dependents' Sake Will Be Reclassified

By JOSEPH A. BORS
WASHINGTON, May 16—Tracing the progress of America's Selective Service training program, military experts concluded today that the bulk of the nation's huge and well-trained Army now fighting or ready to tackle the axis powers on the world's battlefronts is comprised of hardy youths between the ages of 20 and 30.

Despite the fact that the War department is preparing to call to active duty men between the ages of 36 and 44 in the near future, the fact remains that any fighting done this year or early in 1943 will fall on the broad shoulders of youthful selectees who have been streaming to the training camps since the Fall of 1940.

Since it takes at least a year from the date of induction to complete a soldier's training, it is obvious that older men who will be called during the balance of this year probably will not see action until late next year or early 1944.

Changes brought about by the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor inevitably will result in a huge Army of men ranging from 20 years, or younger, to 44, but military experts do not anticipate that the older selectees will see service at the fighting fronts for some time.

Men To Go

However, all plans have been completed to induct men over 35 and men with dependents within the next few months. Another indication of this was a ruling just issued by Selective Service headquarters to give men inducted after June 15 two weeks in which to wind up their personal affairs.

"Those who are not engaged in essential activities (class 3-A) will be the first selected for military service when it becomes necessary to induct men with dependents," officials said.

All this, however, will not change the fact that the nation's growing Army now ready for action or in final training states is comprised mostly of younger men.

Military men anticipate little change in this general age picture for some time to come, indicating Returns, not yet complete, showed the Senate minority leader ahead of Geary by 25,000 votes to again become Oregon's GOP candidate for the upper house.

Meanwhile, Governor Charles A. Sprague conceded defeat and bowed out to Secretary of State Earl Snell, his opponent on the Republican ticket. Early returns showed Snell with a comfortable margin which was expected to widen as ballots came in from outlying sections.

GAS CHISELERS TO FEEL STING OF PUBLICITY

WASHINGTON, May 16—Determined to thwart "chiselers" and plug gaping loopholes in the present plan, price administration officials said today that a modified version of the sugar distribution scheme will be adopted July 1 for rationing gasoline on the east coast.

Well aware that the current system is "wide open" to violation and evasion, harassed OPA representatives disclosed that after July 1, new ration books will be issued bearing detachable "coupons," which filling station operators will be required to tear off, preserve and return to their suppliers in obtaining equivalent new stock of gasoline.

At the same time, Price Chief Leon Henderson, acting on a suggestion by President Roosevelt, took drastic emergency action to offset flaws in the present system by authorizing the publication of the names of all gasoline ration-card holders, except members of the armed forces and law enforcement agencies.

Henderson warned that OPA officials and local rationing boards will "check" on holders of high-rated "b" and "x" cards and "invited" ineligible possessors to return them post-haste to local boards and obtain cards providing for a smaller ration.

MOSCOW—Old men, women and children are assisting Russian troops in rounding up Germans found to be hiding in cellars and lofts of buildings in recaptured localities on the Kharkov front, the Moscow radio said today.

LONDON—The diplomatic expert of the Daily Telegraph said today that Germany this year will reap the worst harvest since the start of the war but with the existing hard scale of rationing should be able to survive one more winter. The collapse of the Reich before the winter of 1943-44 is inevitable, he declared.

Laval, it was disclosed, left for Paris yesterday and departed again at dawn today.

SUB'S EXPLOIT IN MISSISSIPPI AREA DISCLOSED

Big U. S. Freighter Sent To Bottom Off Mouth Of River

27 LIVES ARE LOST

Ohioan Among Members Of Crew Rescued After Daring Attack

NEW ORLEANS, May 16—The brazen exploit of an enemy submarine which penetrated to the mouth of the Mississippi river, there sinking a large merchant vessel only a mile and a half from the river's mouth, put seamen on the alert inshore today.

The American cargo ship, rocked by tremendous explosions which were heard forty miles inland, was quickly converted into a mass of flames after a series of rapid-fire torpedo hits, and burned for hours before going down.

Twenty-seven members of the ship's crew were killed as three torpedoes ripped into the freighter near the Mississippi delta, Eighth Naval district headquarters announced yesterday. Three sinkings in the gulf were announced earlier in the week.

Sixteen survivors were picked up by coast guard crews, but six of them were seriously burned before escaping from the craft. The others were less seriously burned. The attack took place in broad daylight Tuesday. The ship had stopped when the first torpedo hit at 3:05 p. m., with two more striking soon afterward, according to survivors. It sank in 100 feet of water.

Ohioan Saved

Mike Kuzma, of St. Paul, Minn., leaped into the water without a life preserver and, besides saving himself, helped two others—Bert MacDowell of Lima, O., and Turner O. Hanley of Morales, Tex.—keep afloat until rescuers arrived.

Capt. Bengt H. Larson of Squantum, Mass., and other officers of the ship, name of which was withheld, were among those lost. Seven bodies were recovered. Survivors were brought to a New Orleans hospital.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 16 — A proposal that the House of Commons meet secretly to discuss methods of combating the submarine menace in the St. Lawrence river was under consideration today by Prime Minister MacKenzie King.

J. S. Roy, independent member for Gaspe, Quebec, made the proposal in an effort to find means of preventing new attacks on United Nations vessels on the St. Lawrence. Two ships were sunk by an axis u-boat Monday night.

Farming in Southern Ohio

BY THOMAS E. BEERY

Mowing the Lawn
That's a very necessary job and an easy one if you plan your work right. The man who takes care of his lawn has well demonstrated that regularly, and doesn't let it "Get ahead of him" as he expresses it. Then he can go "skimming over it" in only about three hours, and I expect there is at least one fourth of an acre in the lawn.

We like to have it mowed on Friday or Saturday, so it looks nice on the week end, when the most friends and relatives call.

Re-seeding the Lawn
That's a necessary job that we have found very hard, but we seem to be getting results this year, by sowing timothy and red top in January. It is now well started and the bare spots are hard to find. Seeding at this time of the year gives much better results that late February or March or even April seedings of grasses and clovers. Did you know that? I recently learned that Frank Bayham, who manages the Beecher farms near Hillsboro, has sowed clover in January for many years, with very good results.

Exceptions
There are a good many exceptions to this practice, I realize that. A very successful southern Ohio farmer never sows his clover on his low level farm until April, and then he uses a clover drill, and he says he almost always gets a good stand, and at the same time gives his wheat some cultivation that he thinks is good for it.

Pasturing Wheat
How long can you pasture wheat and not do the stand much damage? That's a question I have been asked several times recently.

I have asked some good farmers for the answer and they say that if the ground is very wet that you shouldn't pasture it at all; but that if you don't pasture it too close, and get the stock off before it begins to joint, that you don't reduce the yield very much, and you prevent it from lodging on rich bottom land.

One very successful farmer says it is a mistake to pasture wheat at all, and that the thing to do to prevent lodging is to raise a stiff strawed wheat like the Thorne and to give it a balanced diet, and it won't lodge, unless it is very wet, and we have a high wind, when most any crop will go down, especially if the storm has been preceded by a heavy rain, that left the soil soft and the anchorage of the plants insecure. "I top dressed about ten acres of very good second bottom land with manure last year, and I also fertilized it much heavier than is usually done, with a fertilizer carrying much phosphorus and potash, and my wheat stood up well, when other wheat on similar soil types in the community went down, and it made 55 bushels per acre," he explained. Since all the wheat you get over 12 bushels per acre is profit, he had a nice margin of profit.

Two combines were used to cut this crop, so they made short work of it; and the wheat surely come up out of the bottoms fast, the owner said.

Fayette County
I recently had the pleasure of crossing Fayette county, Ohio and I kept my eyes open for farm news items for this column, and I certainly found them, for there is a lot of good farming in Fayette county, and most of the land is fertile.

Corn Ground
It wasn't time to plant corn, but most of the fields were dug down, so that preparing the seed bed will be an easy matter, and the soil moisture will be conserved. Men who handle their soil in this way, and then give it frequent cultivations before the crop is planted, at intervals of a few days, can, and do, carry over into July, as much as ten inches of rainfall, when it is needed the most for the corn crop. Did you know that?

Beef Calves
We surely saw a lot of them with their mothers, and out on green clover pasture, with a sprinkling of timothy in it, on many farms, and on some sweet cover and on a few on alfalfa.

These calves will go over the scales as baby beeves, late in the fall, after a short grain feed, and they will show a profit, in most cases.

Most of the calves get some grain in feeders in the pastures in summer, which helps to keep the baby flesh on them, and to give them an evenner and a firmer covering, that is always in demand by the packer. "Grassers" get cut every time. Did you know that? A look at the carcass will give you the explanation. The meat of a grass fed beef lacks marbling and it doesn't have that bright red color, so popular with the retail trade, and the beef isn't as good as that of an animal that has had some grain.

The Next Calf Crop
Some men report trouble in getting the next calf crop started, when the calves are born in the early Spring and run with the mothers all Summer, but if some ground wheat is fed to them in connection with their usual ground corn or corn and cob meal, and a good bull is kept, you won't have very much trouble in getting them bred, early in the season.

We keep a pure bred Jersey cow at our home in Hillsboro and last year we had some trouble in getting her bred, but when we followed our veterinarian's recommendation, and replaced about half of the ground corn and cob meal, that is balanced with a 36 percent protein supplement, with ground wheat, our troubles were soon over.

We learned something about feeding this cow, too, that we thought would be of interest to many of our readers. She was fed about the same ration during the five weeks she was dry, as we did during the rest of the year, and she gained in weight. The only change was the addition to a small handful of oil meal, with each feeding, to make it a little more laxative. The calf was at least 20 pounds heavier than the one the previous year; It would have weighed 100 pounds, and that is big for a pure bred Jersey calf.

I might add that since its mother made 414 pounds in her best year in a cow testing association, and the sire of the calf was also a pure bred Jersey, from the John Q. Roads herd in Hillsboro, with a long line of high producing cows back of him, we had trouble in selling it for a herd bull. He'll make good, too. I'd bet on that, if I was a gambling man.

part of the current submarine disasters along the Atlantic Coast is said to result from lack of cooperation between the Army and Navy.

Another jurisdictional fight still undecided is among the State Department, Bureau of Economic Warfare and the Justice Department as to who should prosecute violators of the Black List. And because the row has not been decided, there have been no prosecutions, and some companies are beginning to thumb their noses at the Black List.

HULL vs. WALLACE
The Black List feud is just a small part of the most unfortunate jurisdictional row of all — between Secretary of State Hull and his career diplomats on one side, and Vice President Wallace, plus his Bureau of Economic Warfare, on the other. Two weeks ago the President himself finally stepped in to settle this.

Tragedy of these feuds is that it is the American public, not the bureaucrats, which suffers. And the result of the Wallace-Hull jurisdictional row may be that the public will have less Brazilian rubber, less Bolivian tin, less of other Latin American materials.

The row dates back to last Summer when the White House created the Bureau of Economic Warfare to use the power of American dollars, trade and loans to hit the Axis abroad, particularly in South America.

Secretary Hull at that time was wrathful that the job was given to Wallace, and referred to the Vice President in strong and picturesque language. Hull also blamed Undersecretary Welles and Lawrence Duggan, his Latin American adviser, for letting Wallace get the job while he, Hull, was on vacation.

Then came Pearl Harbor and the need for rubber, tin, quinine, hemp, vegetable oils. Something was supposed to be done about filling some of these needs at the Rio de Janeiro Conference in January. But though the State Department sent experts to discuss rubber at Rio, nothing happened. Three months passed. And not a single pound of rubber reached us from Rio.

So at this point Wallace's Bureau of Economic Warfare stepped in with a plan for doing what the American Chicla Company has done in Central America — send U. S. experts into the jungle, set up camps, transportation, and rush out the goods—by airplane if necessary.

Wallace's men pointed out that to tap rubber trees in the Amazon jungles required steamboat transportation, barracks, quinine, food, and organization. They planned to use American Chicla men to do it, in cooperation with Brazil.

STATE DEPARTMENT SAYS NO

But the State Department said no. They objected that this would offend Brazil, that it would be invading that nation's sovereign rights, would hurt the Good Neighbor policy.

The Bureau of Economic Warfare countered that they would work closely with Brazilians, would do nothing to interfere with Brazilian sovereignty.

But the State Department continued to say no. Foreign relations, it argued, were the tradi-

So today, the State Department can refuse a passport to any man Wallace wants to send to Brazil if it so chooses. And all negotiations must be carried on through the very charming but prim young gentlemen who sit in the rarified atmosphere of U. S. Embassies in Latin America.

Actually there is something to be said for the State Department's idea that you cannot offend the sovereign sensibilities of a Good Neighbor. Also there is a lot to be said for Wallace's idea of sending go-getters to the Brazilian jungles to bring out the rubber.

But the tragedy is that two organizations, equally interested in defeating Hitler, cannot sit down and work out a commonsense agreement without getting into a jurisdictional row as bad as any CIO-AFL brawl — and just as harmful to the war effort.

SUB'S EXPLOIT IN MISSISSIPPI AREA DISCLOSED

Big U. S. Freighter Sent To Bottom Off Mouth Of River

27 LIVES ARE LOST

Ohioan Among Members Of Crew Rescued After Daring Attack

NEW ORLEANS, May 16—The brazen exploit of an enemy submarine which penetrated to the mouth of the Mississippi river, there sinking a large merchant vessel only a mile and a half from the river's mouth, put seamen on the alert inshore today.

The American cargo ship, rocked by tremendous explosions which were heard forty miles inland, was quickly converted into a mass of flames after a series of rapid-fire torpedo hits, and burned for hours before going down.

Twenty-seven members of the ship's crew were killed as three torpedoes ripped into the freighter near the Mississippi delta. Eighth Naval district headquarters announced yesterday. Three sinkings in the gulf were announced earlier in the week.

Sixteen survivors were picked up by coast guard crews, but six of them were seriously burned before escaping from the craft. The others were less seriously burned. The attack took place in broad daylight Tuesday. The ship had stopped when the first torpedo hit at 3:05 p. m., with two more striking soon afterward, according to survivors. It sank in 100 feet of water.

Ohioan Saved

Mike Kuzma, of St. Paul, Minn., leaped into the water without a life preserver and, besides saving himself, helped two others — Bert MacDowell of Lima, O., and Turner O. Hanley of Morales, Tex., keep afloat until rescuers arrived.

Capt. Bengt H. Larson of Squantum, Mass., and other officers of the ship, name of which was withheld, were among those lost. Seven bodies were recovered. Survivors were brought to a New Orleans hospital.

Willard T. Wright Begins Training At Great Lake Base

Willard Thompson Wright, 32, son of County Commissioner and Mrs. C. Edward Wright of Harrison township, is the latest recruit from this community to be sent to the U. S. Naval Training station at Great Lakes, Ill. He will receive training there prior to being ordered to active duty either with the U. S. fleet at sea or at a naval shore station.

New recruits are training thoroughly in seamanship and naval procedure during their preliminary indoctrination at the training station.

Wright, who lived in Circleville prior to his enlistment, has received a rating as seaman, first class.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hill, Huston street, have received a letter from their son, Sergeant Louis Hill, that he is in service in Australia. The communication was the first the Hills have received since early in February. At that time their son was on U. S. soil. He has a brother, Harrison, also in service.

His police training received in Circleville has helped Raymond H. Smith, who is stationed at Cochran field, Macon, Ga., get a good start in the U. S. Air Corps stationed there. Smith has written to Police Chief W. F. McCrady that he is serving as a military policeman at Cochran field and that he is due soon for a sergeant's rank. Smith has only recently been assigned to Cochran field after entering training at Jefferson barracks, Mo. Smith's address is: Private Raymond H. Smith, P. R. D. No. 5, Company D, Cochran field, Macon, Ga.

Tuesday—The Day of Conflict

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for May 17 is Matthew 21:23-23:39, the Golden Text being Mark 12:10, "The stone which the builders rejected, The same was made the head of the corner.")

THE DAY of conflict, when our Lord disputed with the scribes and Pharisees, sternly telling them where they erred, in their ways of living and in their thinking. He knew very well that His days on earth were now numbered. His enemies would destroy Him as the person, Jesus, the carpenter, but by so doing would exalt Him to the skies forever.

These elders of the church gathered around Him as He was in the temple, apparently on friendly terms with Him, asking Him questions, which they craftily hoped would anger the people so that they could arrest Him. Their queries and His answers only went to show how inferior they were to Him in holiness and mentality.

At first they asked Him by what authority He taught and who gave Him this authority. They really had a right to ask this, as they were the rulers of the temple. Jesus answered by asking them a question: The baptism of John, whence was it? from heaven or of men?

What could they say? If they said it was from heaven, the natural question rose, Why then did they not believe in him? And if they answered that it was of earth, the people would rise and overcome them, for to the people John was the last of the great prophets. They were stumped, as we say, and admitted they had no answer. Then, said Jesus, I will not answer your question.

Parable of the Two Sons

Then the Lord told them a story which involved another question: A man, He said, had two sons. He asked them to go to work in the vineyard. The first said he would not, but later was sorry and went to work. The second said "I go," but he did not. Which did the will of his father? Naturally the one who worked. The lesson of that parable was that many who thought themselves righteous and kept the letter of the law, did not do the will of the Heavenly Father; but those that at first seemed rebellious and rejected the command, later repented, accepted the Lord and the work assigned them. The first were these same elders of the church who rejected the Master; the second those who believed in Him.

The second parable concerned a man who had a vineyard which he leased to husbandmen to work for him. When the fruit was ripe he sent his servants for it, but the men beat and killed the servants; others who were sent were also killed, and finally the man sent his son, saying, "They will reverence my son." But they plotted to kill him also and to take his inheritance, the vineyard. The Scribes and Pharisees saw Jesus meant them by these wicked men, and Himself as the son whom they meant to kill (for well He knew what they were plotting), and were furious about it, but could do nothing because the multitude took Him for a prophet.

Parable of Marriage Feast

We have not room for the entire story of the king who made a feast for his son's marriage and invited his friends, who proved too busy to come. The second call was given, but no one responded, so the king sent his army and destroyed these false ones, and told his men to bring all they could find in the highways and byways, good or bad. They did so, and the wedding was furnished with guests. One, however, had arrogantly come to the feast without putting on the gala clothes provided, and him the king threw out "into outer darkness" because he was selfish and disloyal.

Then Jesus was asked if He thought it was lawful to pay the Roman taxes, which were humiliating to the Jews. It was a legitimate question, but Jesus answered, "Shew Me the tribute money," and when it was brought, "Whose image is this, and superscription?" They answered, "Caesar's." "Render therefore unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's; and unto God the things that are God's." This is one of the most complete and most crushing answers ever recorded. And probably the next is His answer to the lawyer who asked Him what was the greatest commandment in the law: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy mind," He said, and further, the second is, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

Then in indignation and sorrow Christ called these men hypocrites who kept the letter of the law, made long prayers, were called "Rabbi," etc., but neglected the poor, misled their converts, worshiped only the gold of the temple; paid their tithes but omitted judgment, mercy and faith. "Woe unto you!" He cried, and then sorrowfully prophesying the ruin that was to come in a generation: because of their blindness and stupidity, "Behold, your house is left unto you desolate. Ye shall not see Me henceforth, till ye shall say, Blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord."

With his 20 years experience in the Far East as a background, the Rev. Mr. Sauer will use as his topic, "Japan Today".

"Lift Up Your Heads" by Wag-horne will be the anthem for the morning services with a solo, "A Song of Redemption" by Prothe-ro, sung by Mrs. Dudley Carpen-ter, as a part of the morning pro-gram.

for him. When the fruit was ripe he sent his servants for it, but the men beat and killed the servants; others who were sent were also killed, and finally the man sent his son, saying, "They will reverence my son." But they plotted to kill him also and to take his inheritance, the vineyard. The Scribes and Pharisees saw Jesus meant them by these wicked men, and Himself as the son whom they meant to kill (for well He knew what they were plotting), and were furious about it, but could do nothing because the multitude took Him for a prophet.

Parable of Marriage Feast

We have not room for the entire story of the king who made a feast for his son's marriage and invited his friends, who proved too busy to come. The second call was given, but no one responded, so the king sent his army and destroyed these false ones and told his men to bring all they could find in the highways and byways, good or bad. They did so, and the wedding was furnished with guests. One, however, had arrogantly come to the feast without putting on the gala clothes provided, and him the king threw out "into outer darkness" because he was selfish and disloyal.

Then Jesus was asked if He thought it was lawful to pay the Roman taxes, which were humiliating to the Jews. It was a legitimate question, but Jesus answered, "Shew Me the tribute money," and when it was brought, "Whose image is this, and superscription?" They answered, "Caesars." "Render therefore unto Caesar the things that are Caesars; and unto God the things that are God's." This is one of the most complete and most crushing answers ever recorded. And probably the next is His answer to the lawyer who asked Him what was the greatest commandment in the law: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy mind." He said, and further, the second is, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

Then in indignation and sorrow Christ called these men hypocrites who kept the letter of the law, made long prayers, were called Rabbi, etc., but neglected the poor, misled their converts, worshiped only the gold of the temple; paid their tithes but omitted judgment, mercy and faith. "Voe unto you!" He cried, and then sorrowfully prophesying the ruin that was to come in a generation: because of their blindness and stupidity, "Behold, your house is left unto you desolate. Ye shall not see me henceforth, till ye shall say, Blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord."

Tuesday—The Day of Conflict ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Matthew 21:23-23:39.

On Tuesday of Passion Week Jesus entered the temple and was questioned by the scribes and Pharisees as to His authority for teaching; Jesus refused to answer unless they told Him whether John, the Baptist's baptism was from heaven or of men.

Jesus talked to these men in parables, telling them first of the man who had two sons in the vineyard, but the first said no, but later repented and went to work. The second said, I go, but he did not obey his father.

Then He told the parable of the householder who had a vineyard which he rented to husbandmen. These men killed the servants sent by the master, and finally, when his son went to them, they conspired to slay him also, and keep the vineyard.

When the chief priests and Pharisees had heard these parables, they realized that Jesus meant them by the wicked ones, but they were afraid to lay hands on Him because the people took Him for a prophet.

SUBMARINE TROUBLE

THE sinking of a freight ship in the St. Lawrence River, by a hostile submarine, brought a shock to Canada and also to the United States. It is the first time such craft has penetrated any of this continent's great waterways. The foe evidently slipped westward from the Gulf of St. Lawrence, past Anticosti Island which fronts the river mouth, then into the lower reaches of the St. Lawrence. From there it is 500 miles to Quebec, with depth for ocean shipping all the way.

Quebec naturally is alarmed. There need be no fear, however, of submarines penetrating the Great Lakes or the Mississippi River. To reach the Lakes a hostile craft would have to get through the shallow and rocky stretches above Quebec and Montreal, a feat hardly imaginable. New Orleans and its approaches are safeguarded not only by fortifications but by the narrowness of the Mississippi outlets into the Gulf of Mexico.

Enemy craft might penetrate deeply into Hudson Strait and thence down into Hudson Bay, interfering somewhat with summer traffic between Port Nelson and the Atlantic. But there are no cities in that region, and it would be a long and dangerous adventure for any foreign craft. The main peril from submarines is obviously on our eastern sea coast.

RELEASE OF WOMEN

WOMEN'S place now seems to be in the munition factory, and it is surprising how they take to it. Especially so when it is remembered how inept about machinery women were always supposed to be. Why, they couldn't be trusted with a hammer or a pair of pliers, not to mention a monkey wrench. They couldn't drive a nail straight. They were helpless except in a kitchen or schoolroom or office.

And now look at them. By thousands and tens of thousands they pour into the factories and tackle war jobs formerly sacred to men. They don't tinker. They don't do any industrial tatting or hem-stitching or embroidering. They handle big machines weighing tons, but requiring great accuracy and precision. They use enormous power to grind and punch and press and polish steel. From their hands come casings for bombs and a thousand other things.

The work may be exacting, but they stand it. It takes skill rather than strength. They work mostly on their feet. A few minutes now and then to relax, then they're at it again, doing a full day's work. They have gone suddenly far beyond the sewing machine. They earn good pay and

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

JURISDICTIONAL FEUDS

WASHINGTON — In the office of Federal Trade Commissioner March is a sign which reads:
"WE ARE FIGHTING HITLER, NOT EACH OTHER."

That advice would be most beneficial, if heeded, in certain high offices vital to our war effort.

Before Pearl Harbor, the American public was sickened by the jurisdictional fights between labor unions; the sight of vital defense projects stymied while a CIO union fought an AFL union over who should collect dues.

Since Pearl Harbor labor rows have dwindled. But behind the scenes in Washington, jurisdictional fights, just as bad as those between rival labor unions, continue. An, as in the case of the racketeering labor czars, prestige or personal vanity is often the sole issue between rival bureaucrats.

For instance, Army and Navy Intelligence fought Col. Donovan's committee to the last ditch on counter-espionage. The head of Military Intelligence, Gen. Sherman Miles was transferred before full cooperation was created.

Later the Donovan Committee actually sent electricians over to the State Department and ripped out the teletype machine by which the State Department was receiving news for its propaganda broadcasts to occupied countries. This, the Donovan Committee contended, was its job, not the State Department's.

"KEEP OUT!"

Again when the Rockefeller Committee was appointed to propagandize in Latin America, the State Department fought it tooth and nail. Latin American propaganda, the State Department said, was its job, and could not be delegated to the Rockefeller Committee or anyone else.

But later, when the Donovan Committee wanted to send short wave broadcasts to Latin America, the State Department and the Rockefeller Committee suddenly got together. They united against the common enemy, the Donovan Committee.

"Latin America," said both Rockefeller and the diplomats in effect, "is our stamping ground. Keep out!"

Then there was the quarrel between Justice and the Treasury as to which should handle alien property. The argument lasted so long that it delayed seizure of certain important German patents, and finally was settled when Roosevelt appointed Leo Crowley to be Alien Property Custodian, independent of both departments.

WEST POINT vs. ANNAPOLIS

Probably the oldest jurisdictional row at times causing more harm than labor union squabbles, has been between the Army and Navy. The Army claimed that air rivalry over patrolling the Pacific was partly responsible for Pearl Harbor; while seem well and happy. The factories are mostly clean, well lighted and sanitary.

It looks like an industrial revolution. These women are not enslaved but released. And they are regarded with new respect.

DIET AND HEALTH

How Food Determines The Making of History

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

"FOOD WILL win the war and food will dictate the peace." This pronouncement of Secretary of Agriculture Wickard has undoubtedly a great deal of historical wisdom and acumen behind it.

Modern historians get pretty far away from the influence of individuals such as Hitler and Mussolini on the determination of history. They are inclined to credit other forces with the changes in empires, the origin of wars, the migration of peoples.

It is not difficult to find illustrations of the fact that a nation or a culture can develop only when or where a sufficient supply or surplus of food becomes available.

There was never a great outburst of art and literature—at least a systematic outburst—in a starving country. Leisure is necessary to develop the arts, and for leisure a good food supply is necessary.

Fate Sealed by Banquets

At the same time, if culinary art is the only one which is developing in a country, it may lead to quite as serious consequences as if there were no food at all. Thus we find physiologists stating that the Roman banquets probably sealed the fate of the Roman Empire, and in our own day the French cuisine, the French food and wine may have been factors in the fall of France. In short, too much food and too much catering to the appetite can ruin an empire just as surely as they ruin an individual.

As a corollary to this, I find some curious comment made by Dr. Frederick Hoelzel of the Department of Physiology, University of Chicago. He thinks that two cultures which have enjoyed the longest continuous history without serious interruption, such as the cultures of India and China, depended partially at least on a relatively steady state or balance between the supply and the use of food.

In World War I German resistance cracked partly because of undernourishment due to the food blockade, and shortly after that Russia came close to complete collapse because of famine conditions in that country.

Effect of Starvation Periods

Dr. Hoelzel's most curious and stimulating suggestion concerns the effect of starvation periods on mental and physical vigor after the starvation period is over. He has had a personal experience of 600 days of fasting and he believes that the most striking after-effects of fasting or food restriction occur between the ages of about 25 and 35. He believes that this would possibly mean that the great vigor of the German and Russian military campaigns would manifest itself in those of about 40 to 60 years of age and therefore men now in active control—men who had the experience of starvation or semi-starvation in the days of World War I.

It is true that every physiologist who has ever observed starvation has found a great manifestation of physical and mental vigor when re-alimentation occurs after periods of fasting and food restriction. However, it seems doubtful to me that these effects would begin to manifest themselves 20 years after the starvation period, and I suspect that the maintenance of the even level of American nutrition for the last 40 years will result in just as much military vigor as that manifested by the Russian and German armies.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

P. R. W.:—I would like to ask your opinion on the subject of bathing during pregnancy. Should one bathe regularly during the entire confinement?

Answer: Yes. The skin performs important functions of excretion during pregnancy and should be kept clean in order to make it efficient. Toward the end of the term a sponge bath is all that is necessary.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

TIBBY WONDERED if Marg realized that in her confession she had not mentioned the name of the man with whom she was in love. Not that that was necessary, for Tibby felt certain, with a sinking heart, that it could not be anyone except Captain Mercer.

Marg had said that, although she had known she thought about this man more than she should, and hoped that he thought about her, neither had admitted it until the night of the crack-up, when, as she expressed it, their love had "come out into the open."

"We both fought it," Marg said now, still not naming the man, "but when we both realized it might be the end of everything, how near, at least, we had come to it, there didn't seem any sense in fighting it any longer. There's no sense at all, I guess, when it comes to love," she finished miserably.

This was practically the same decision that Tibby had reached about love. There did not seem to be any sense to it. It seemed so cruel that Marg's happiness must be so short-lived a second time, so sad that she must be hurt again. Of course she was bound to be hurt. Captain Mercer, as Steena had pointed out, already had a wife and so was not free. The first man with whom Marg had fallen in love had married someone else.

"You see," Marg said, painful color spreading over her face, but her eyes still honest and direct, "he's already married. I know that's no excuse for him, or for me. We both knew that he wasn't free."

It was like Marg not to try to excuse herself. Tibby admired her for that. She said, "Maybe he will be—someday." In her heart, however, she did not believe that could be the solution.

Marg seemed not to believe that, either. "No," she shook her head, "that's out. His wife wouldn't agree to divorce, if I were willing for him to do such a thing, which I'm not. I don't relish the role of home wrecker. It hardly becomes me, but," she added, "I guess, from all I hear, that this home was wrecked before I stepped into the picture."

Tibby had heard, too, that Captain Mercer and his wife did not get on well together. Mrs. Mercer was said to be a shallow, selfish sort of person; there were no children to make the ties a real home needed. Tibby agreed that Marg was hardly a home wrecker; having been hurt herself by another woman, she would not want to hurt someone else, but if Mrs. Mercer did not love her husband, maybe she would not be hurt.

Oh, it was all so mixed up—not a "pretty story," as Marg had said, "no triangle ever was, Tibby decided. It was not a new one, as Marg had commented, in telling about the doctor who had jilted her, but it had been new to her, as now it was new again—and therefore it was important to the people concerned; it was new in that they would have to find how they could meet an old situation, bravely, wisely—the way it would have to be met for each individual.

"I don't know what to do," Marg said, as many women must have said before her. "I know it's wrong—and yet to me, because it's so wonderful, it's right, too. I know I should go away while I am strong enough, and yet, to run from trouble would be to give up. I suppose I ought to be ashamed, but I am proud to have won the love of a man so fine and to give him the little I can in return."

Tibby wished there were something she could say to help her. She was glad she had told Marg that she always would be proud of her; she was proud of her now, although she might, in the eyes of the world, have done a foolish thing, broken the rules, as Steena had phrased it, but Marg had not meant to break them. Maybe there were other rules, man-made. Maybe there would be some solution, unforeseen.

Tibby tried to say something of this for comfort. "You will know what is best to do when the time comes," she told her friend. "Maybe there is no right and wrong—like black and white—no straight line between weakness and strength. Each of us only can do what seems best and right for him. I know that you will do that, Marg. You're so fine yourself, so good."

Marg shook her head; tears filled her eyes. She was comforted to have a friend who believed in her. She hit her lips fiercely, however, for she knew that tears did not help, although these were not of self pity, but from gratitude toward Tibby. Even one's friends did not always possess such rare understanding or such loyalty. Marg would try to live up to them.

After that talk, Tibby was impressed by the loyalty Marg had shown, for she still had not revealed the name of the man. She may have guessed, of course, that Tibby knew, but it was rather fine of Marg not to say what it was, for Tibby felt that the biggest share of blame rested on the man's shoulders. He was the one who was not free; he must know that his love could not bring Marg any happiness. He should have been the one to have the most strength by not having been weak enough, even under the stress of impending death, to have betrayed his feelings for Marg, to allow her to betray her own.

Maybe she was judging Captain Mercer too harshly. If he was as fine a man as Marg felt him to be, he would do what was right, too. Though that might mean even less happiness for her friend Tibby hoped it would prove true. She felt it would be worse for Marg to discover this love unworthy, this man unfaithful. Then, truly, Marg would be hurt irrevocably.

That she was bound to be hurt some was inevitable, as also was proved by the remark Steena made a day or two after Marg's confession to Tibby.

"I told you I didn't envy Marg's becoming such a heroine," Steena said in Marg's presence. "I also told you that Captain Mercer's wife might have something to say about it. It seems she's wild because Marg got all that publicity—thanks to HER husband, Mrs. Mercer says she intends to do something about it."

"What can she do?" Tibby asked, as she had when Steena had said before that the captain's wife might not be as generous in giving Marg the spotlight as he. Again, she felt rather sick, for there must be more talk going around, since the accident, that Steena had somehow got onto. Tibby knew that Marg never would confide in Steena.

"She can go to the company and ask to have Marg's schedule changed, or for her to be transferred—or even fired," Steena said. "Far be it from me to say anything to Marg. I tried once to tell her she ought to watch her step. If you want facts this time, since you wouldn't believe me before when I said there were ugly rumors being circulated, Marg and the captain did not just have breakfast together the morning after that crack-up; they had breakfast AND lunch AND dinner. They spent the entire time, until they returned, with each other. If you want to know how this was established, the company was trying, naturally, to get in communication with the crew."

"But that doesn't prove anything," Tibby objected, not too intelligently. Why couldn't poor Marg and her captain have been allowed that one day? She knew it had been the day when they had found they loved each other; only to find so soon that they might never have another. "I mean things are not always the way they appear." She hoped Steena would realize this, not only in regard to Marg, but in regard to Tibby and Wayne and the dance, although Steena had not, as yet, made any comment upon Tibby's brief recount of that event.

"That is exactly why everyone should be more careful," Steena shrewdly remarked. "The best intentions in the world are likely to be misconstrued. The most platonic relationship may be taken for a love affair."

Did Steena refer to Tibby and Wayne, as well as to Marg and her captain?

There goes Bob Colville, who staged the band concert benefit for the Defense Council. About half a house for one of the finest shows presented locally in a long time. From Australia came a letter to Steadman the photographer, from his son Robert, second lieutenant in the air corps. "I am getting to feel like a native Australian," he wrote. "I can understand the most accented accent, figure my weight in stones, throw pence, shillings, florins, pounds, etc., around like a veteran, drive on the left side of the street, and almost everything else except eat with my

And then came one of the biggest laughs I have had in several moons. Bob's crew chief, or rather was, a young technical sergeant with a lot of life. Did his work well, was liked by everyone. His buddy was assigned to duty elsewhere and the two staged a farewell party and with wisdom absent from their cafe table. A few too many drinks when time came to report back to camp. The RAF has a woman's group known as the Women's Auxiliary Air Force and the girls have special barracks just like the men. The two young Americans passed the girl's headquarters on the way to their camp. One building bore a sign, "Shower Room" and from behind the door came the kind of sounds that go out from any shower room. The young sergeant opened the door carefully, stuck in his head and yelled "boo!" Don't think he didn't get results. It was almost a riot. And now the sergeant is a private, has a big army fine to pay and Bob is out a crew chief.

SUBMARINE TROUBLE

THE sinking of a freight ship in the St. Lawrence River, by a hostile submarine, brought a shock to Canada and also to the United States. It is the first time such craft has penetrated any of this continent's great waterways. The foe evidently slipped westward from the Gulf of St. Lawrence, past Anticosti Island which fronts the river mouth, then into the lower reaches of the St. Lawrence. From there it is 500 miles to Quebec, with depth for ocean shipping all the way.

Quebec naturally is alarmed. There need be no fear, however, of submarines penetrating the Great Lakes or the Mississippi River. To reach the Lakes a hostile craft would have to get through the shallow and rocky stretches above Quebec and Montreal, a feat hardly imaginable. New Orleans and its approaches are safeguarded not only by fortifications but by the narrowness of the Mississippi outlets into the Gulf of Mexico.

Enemy craft might penetrate deeply into Hudson Strait and thence down into Hudson Bay, interfering somewhat with summer traffic between Port Nelson and the Atlantic. But there are no cities in that region, and it would be a long and dangerous adventure for any foreign craft. The main peril from submarines is obviously on our eastern sea coast.

RELEASE OF WOMEN

WOMEN's place now seems to be in the munition factory, and it is surprising how they take to it. Especially so when it is remembered how inept about machinery women were always supposed to be. Why, they couldn't be trusted with a hammer or a pair of pliers, not to mention a monkey wrench. They couldn't drive a nail straight. They were helpless except in a kitchen or schoolroom or office.

And now look at them. By thousands and tens of thousands they pour into the factories and tackle war jobs formerly sacred to men. They don't tinker. They don't do any industrial tatting or hem-stitching or embroidering. They handle big machines weighing tons, but requiring great accuracy and precision. They use enormous power to grind and punch and press and polish steel. From their hands come casings for bombs and a thousand other things.

The work may be exacting, but they stand it. It takes skill rather than strength. They work mostly on their feet. A few minutes now and then to relax, then they're at it again, doing a full day's work. They have gone suddenly far beyond the sewing machine. They earn good pay and

WASHINGTON — In the office of Federal Trade Commissioner March is a sign which reads:

"WE ARE FIGHTING HITLER, NOT EACH OTHER."

That advice would be most beneficial, if heeded, in certain high offices vital to our war effort.

Before Pearl Harbor, the American public was sickened by the jurisdictional fights between labor unions; the sight of vital defense projects stymied while a CIO union fought an AFL union over who should collect dues.

Since Pearl Harbor labor rows have dwindled. But behind the scenes in Washington, jurisdictional fights, just as bad as those between rival labor unions, continue. An, as in the case of the racketeering labor czars, prestige or personal vanity is often the sole issue between rival bureaucrats.

For instance, Army and Navy Intelligence fought Col. Donovan's committee to the last ditch on counter-espionage. The head of Military Intelligence, Gen. Sherman Miles was transferred before full cooperation was created.

Later the Donovan Committee actually sent electricians over to the State Department and ripped out the teletype machine by which the State Department was receiving news for its propaganda broadcasts to occupied countries. This, the Donovan Committee contended, was its job, not the State Department's.

"KEEP OUT!"

Again when the Rockefeller Committee was appointed to propagandize in Latin America, the State Department fought it tooth and nail. Latin American propaganda, the State Department said, was its job, and could not be delegated to the Rockefeller Committee or anyone else.

But later, when the Donovan Committee wanted to send short wave broadcasts to Latin America, the State Department and the Rockefeller Committee suddenly got together. They united against the common enemy, the Donovan Committee.

"Latin America," said both Rockefeller and the diplomats in effect, "is our stamping ground. Keep out!"

Then there was the quarrel between Justice and the Treasury as to which should handle alien property. The argument lasted so long that it delayed seizure of certain important German patents, and finally was settled when Roosevelt appointed Leo Crowley to be Alien Property Custodian, independent of both departments.

WEST POINT vs. ANNAPOLIS

Probably the oldest jurisdictional row at times causing more harm than labor union squabbles, has been between the Army and Navy. The Army claimed that air rivalry over patrolling the Pacific was partly responsible for Pearl Harbor; while

How Food Determines The Making of History

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

"FOOD WILL win the war and food will dictate the peace." This pronouncement of Secretary of Agriculture Wickard has undoubtedly a great deal of historical wisdom and acumen behind it.

Modern historians get pretty far away from the influence of individual men.

Dr. Clendingen will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

dividuals such as Hitler and Mussolini on the determination of history. They are inclined to credit other forces with the changes in empires, the origin of wars, the migration of peoples.

It is not difficult to find illustrations of the fact that a nation or a culture can develop only when or where a sufficient supply or surplus of food becomes available.

There was never a great outburst of art and literature—at least a systematic outburst—in a starving country. Leisure is necessary to develop the arts, and for leisure a good food supply is necessary.

Fate Sealed by Banquets

At the same time, if culinary art is the only one which is developing in a country, it may lead to quite as serious consequences as if there were no food at all. Thus we find physiologists stating that the Roman banquets probably sealed the fate of the Roman Empire, and in our own day the French cuisine, the French food and wine may have been factors in the fall of France. In short, too much food and too much catering to the appetite can ruin an empire just as surely as they ruin an individual.

As a corollary to this, I find some curious comment made by Dr. Frederick Hoelzel of the Department of Physiology, University of Chicago. He thinks that two cultures which have enjoyed the longest continuous history without serious interruption, such as the cultures of India and China, depended partially at least on a relatively steady state or balance between the supply and the use of food.

In World War I German resistance cracked partly because of undernourishment due to the food blockade, and shortly after that

You Are the One

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR
TIBBY WONDERED if Marg realized that in her confession she had not mentioned the name of the man with whom she was in love. Not that that was necessary, for Tibby felt certain, with a sinking heart, that it could not be anyone except Captain Mercer.

Marg had said that, although she had known she thought about this man more than she should, and hoped that he thought about her, neither had admitted it until the night of the crack-up, when, as she expressed it, their love had "come out into the open."

"We both fought it," Marg said now, still not naming the man, "but when we both realized it might be the end of everything, how near, at least, we had come to it, there didn't seem any sense in fighting it any longer. There's no sense at all, I guess, when it comes to love," she finished miserably.

This was practically the same decision that Tibby had reached about love. There did not seem to be any sense to it. It seemed so cruel that Marg's happiness must be so short-lived a second time, so sad that she must be hurt again. Of course she was bound to be hurt. Captain Mercer, as Steena had pointed out, already had a wife and so was not free. The first man with whom Marg had fallen in love had married someone else.

"You see," Marg said, painful color spreading over her face, but her eyes still honest and direct, "he's already married. I know that's no excuse for him, or for me. We both knew that he wasn't free."

It was like Marg not to try to excuse herself. Tibby admired her for that. She said, "Maybe he will be—some day." In her heart, however, she did not believe that could be the solution.

Marg seemed not to believe that, either. "No," she shook her head, "that's out. His wife wouldn't agree to divorce, if I were willing for him to do such a thing, which I'm not. I don't relish the role of home wrecker. It hardly becomes me, but," she added, "I guess, from all I hear, that this home was wrecked before I stepped into the picture."

Tibby had heard, too, that Captain Mercer and his wife did not get on well together. Mrs. Mercer was said to be a shallow, selfish sort of person; there were no children to make the ties a real home needed. Tibby agreed that Marg was hardly a home wrecker; having been hurt herself by another woman, she would not want to hurt someone else, but if Mrs. Mercer did not love her husband, maybe she would not be hurt.

Oh, it was all so mixed up—not a "pretty story," as Marg had said. No triangle ever was, Tibby decided. It was not a new one, as Marg had commented, in telling about the doctor who had jilted her, but it had been new to her, as now it was new again—and therefore it was important to the people concerned; it was new in that they would have to find how they could meet an old situation, bravely, wisely—the way it would have to be met for each individual.

"I don't know what to do," Marg said, as many women must have said before her. "I know it's wrong—and yet to me, because it's so wonderful, it's right, too. I know I should go away while I am strong enough, and yet, to run from trouble would be weak. I suppose I ought to be ashamed, but I am proud to have won the love of a man so fine and to give him the little I can in return."

Tibby wished there were something she could say to help her. She was glad she had told Marg that she always would be proud of her; she was proud of her now, although she might, in the eyes of the world, have done a foolish thing, broken the rules, as Steena had phrased it, but Marg had not meant to break them. Maybe there were other rules, not made made. Maybe there would be some solution, unforeseen.

Tibby tried to say something of this for comfort. "You will know what is best to do when the time comes," she told her friend. "Maybe there is no right and wrong—like black and white—no straight line between weakness and strength. Each of us only can do what seems best and right for him. I know that you will do that, Marg. You're so fine yourself, so good."

Marg shook her head; tears filled her eyes. She was comforted to have a friend who believed in her. She bit her lips fiercely, however, for she knew that tears did not help, although these were not of self pity, but from gratitude toward Tibby. Even one's friends did not always possess such rare understanding or such loyalty. Marg would try to live up to them.

After that talk, Tibby was impressed by the loyalty Marg had shown, for she still had not revealed the name of the man. She may have guessed, of course, that Tibby knew, but it was rather fine of Marg not to say who it was, for Tibby felt that the biggest share of blame rested on the man's shoulders. HI-Y CLUB HOLDS ANNUAL AFFAIR IN SOCIAL ROOM

Friday, May 8, the high school social room had the scent of delicious food. 'Twas the evening of the Hi-Y Sweetheart banquet and some seventy Hi-Y-lans, their sweethearts, a few faculty members and S. Ezra McCulloh, district Hi-Y supervisor, attended the affair.

Until dinner was served, many danced to the music of a nickelodeon.

Dinner consisted of baked ham, baked potatoes, fruit salad, hot rolls, preserves, milk or coffee, cake and ice cream.

After the meal, President David Betz presented the gavel to the new president, Walter Leist. The new officers were introduced: Vice-president David Orr, secretary Ned Stout, Treasurer William Byers and Sergeant-at-Arms Richard Wells.

Following club adviser Thomas Armstrong's talk, Mr. McCulloh spoke and presented to the club a certificate of membership in the Hi-Y national fellowship.

Remainder of the evening was filled with music and dancing.

The club wishes to thank several Hi-Y mothers who prepared and helped serve the food and cleaned up afterwards. They are Mrs. C. R. Barnhart, Mrs. Paul Betz, Mrs. Lloyd Jones, Mrs. Wayne Leist, Mrs. J. C. Moats, Mrs. Howard Orr, Mrs. Fred Roundhouse, Mrs. Alice Sensenbrenner and Mrs. Frank Webbe.

At the regular meeting Monday the membership pins were distributed to those not having one. Next Monday's meeting will be at Gold Cliff park. Boys will arrive between 5:30 and 7:30 when the formal meeting begins. They are planning a recreational meeting.

CURRENT EVENT UNITS INCREASE USE OF LIBRARY

In the opinion of Miss Gretchen Moeller, high school librarian, nothing has helped as much in teaching students to use the reference section of the library as the present units on current affairs and the writing of term papers.

Students have learned that the unabridged dictionaries contain much valuable information. Atlases, maps, the World Almanac and Current Biography are in constant use. They have discovered that the leading periodicals are an important source of information.

In the high school, Survey Graphic proved to be a special aid to students writing term papers. Time, Newsweek, New Republic and the United States News are important when a pupil wishes to find varied topics.

Among recent books which will help in the new unit on current affairs distributed to the pupils of the schools, are "Berlin Diary," "Inside Europe," "Why Europe Fights," "South of Hitler," "Soviet Russia," "Mein Kampf" and "Which Way America." In addition to these the library also has Encyclopedias — Britannica and Americana, The World Book and a large supply of atlases.

CLUB MEMBERS TO HAVE OUTING

At their next regular meeting the Stodge club will have a stag party at Turney Weldon's camp. This was decided at their meeting at Adviser J. L. Chilcote's home Tuesday. Each boy is to bring his own lunch and the club members will go to the camp in a group.

A gift was given to Mr. Chilcote in appreciation of his service to the club this year. Mr. Chilcote probably will not be teaching next year since he is expected to be inducted into the Army in June.

RED AND BLACK GOLFERS BEAT GRANDVIEW QUARTET

Wednesday afternoon, Tiger golfers turned back a strong Grandview team by a score of 7½ to 4½, in a match played on the Indian Springs golf course. This course will be the scene of the opening of the district golf championship, which is to be held today. Upper Arlington, only victor over our boys this season, is the defending champion.

UNDER CLASSMEN RECEIVE AWARDS AT G. R. BANQUET

Five girls—two freshmen and three sophomores—were recipients of achievement awards at the annual Junior Girl Reserve Mother-Daughter banquet Thursday evening.

At 6 o'clock guests were seated in the social room of the high school to eat the dinner prepared by Mrs. Edward Helwagen and served by six members of the Senior Girl Reserves.

Immediately following the meal President Mary Virginia Crites welcomed the mothers and guests. Mrs. Heinrich M. Crites responded on behalf of the guests.

Miss Alice Roof, club adviser, awarded necklaces to the five girls. They were Phyllis Clark and Ann Moeller, freshmen, Betty Lou Boggs, Anna Ruth Defenbaugh, and Elizabeth Downing, sophomores. Miss Roof presented Mary Virginia Crites a past president's pen and commended her for her excellent work as president of the club this year. Mary, in turn on behalf of the girls, gave Miss Roof a gift in appreciation of her understanding guidance.

Following the presentation, the guests witnessed the ceremony of installing new officers for next year's club. Officers now installed are Eleanor Mast, president; Maxine Friedman, vice-president; Ann Moeller, secretary; and Francis Meinfelder, treasurer.

Guests stood to repeat the code and pledge of the Junior Girl Reserves and to sing the club song "Follow the Glean." After repeating the Lord's prayer, the guests departed.

CONCERT GIVEN BY TWO GROUPS THURSDAY NIGHT

Thursday evening at 8 p. m. the Civilian Defense Committee sponsored a concert in the high school auditorium. The concert was originally scheduled for the athletic field but because of the rain was held indoors. Despite the inclement weather a good crowd was present to see Circleville's first patriotic demonstration.

Circleville high school's band under the direction of C. F. Zaenglein played a group of five numbers. They were "Star Spangled Banner," "Long Live our U. S. of A.," "Trees," "Spirit of America" and "El Capitán March."

The Kiwanette sextet presented the second part of the program. The girls in the group are Barbara Caskey, Mary Virginia Crites, Marvonne Hennessy, Carolyn Herrmann, Virginia Palm and Eleanor Thomas. Under the direction of Miss Marjorie Vorhees they sang "My Hero," "In My Garden," and "The World is Waiting for the Sunrise."

The band returned to present their second group of pieces; namely "Pigskin Pageant Parade," "Teddy Trombone," "Student Prince" and "Marine Band." Miss Marjorie Hunsicker's first aid class then presented a demonstration on what to do in case of a broken leg or a cut cheek.

Lastly the band presented another group — "Them Beases," "Rhythmoths," "Teddy Bears Picnic," "Stormy Weather" and "America I Love You." The Nothing serves so well as a watch to symbolize this day of days—Graduation. It means the end of youthfulness and the fulfillment of school-day dreams. What more fitting companion to recall this day forever and to measure the golden days of the future, than a fine watch?

Until dinner was served, many danced to the music of a nickelodeon. Dinner consisted of baked ham, baked potatoes, fruit salad, hot rolls, preserves, milk or coffee, cake and ice cream.

After the meal, President David Betz presented the gavel to the new president, Walter Leist. The new officers were introduced: Vice-president David Orr, secretary Ned Stout, Treasurer William Byers and Sergeant-at-arms Richard Wells. Following club adviser Thomas Armstrong's talk, Mr. McCulloch spoke and presented to the club a certificate of membership in the Hi-Y national fellowship.

Remainder of the evening was filled with music and dancing. The club wishes to thank several Hi-Y mothers who prepared and helped serve the food and cleaned up afterwards. They are Mrs. C. R. Barnhart, Mrs. Paul Betz, Mrs. Lloyd Jones, Mrs. Wayne Leist, Mrs. J. C. Moats, Mrs. Howard Orr, Mrs. Fred Roundhouse, Mrs. Alice Sensenbrenner and Mrs. Frank Webbe.

At the regular meeting Monday the membership pins were distributed to those not having one. Next Monday's meeting will be at Gold Cliff park. Boys will arrive between 5:30 and 7:30 when the formal meeting begins. They are planning a recreational meeting.

CURRENT EVENT UNITS INCREASE USE OF LIBRARY

In the opinion of Miss Gretchen Moeller, high school librarian, nothing has helped as much in teaching students to use the reference section of the library as the present units on current affairs and the writing of term papers.

Students have learned that the unabridged dictionaries contain much valuable information. Atlases, maps, the World Almanac and Current Biography are in constant use. They have discovered that the leading periodicals are an important source of information. In the high school, Survey Graphic proved to be a special aid to students writing term papers. Time, Newsweek, New Republic and the United States News are important when a pupil wishes to find varied topics.

Among recent books which will help in the new unit on current affairs distributed to the pupils of the schools are "Berlin Diary," "Inside Europe," "Why Europe Fights," "South of Hitler," "Soviet Russia," "Mein Kampf" and "Which Way America." In addition to these the library also has Encyclopedias—Britannica and Americana, The World Book and a large supply of atlases.

CLUB MEMBERS TO HAVE OUTING

At their next regular meeting the Stooze club will have a stag party at Turney Weldon's camp. This was decided at their meeting at Adviser J. L. Chilcote's home Tuesday. Each boy is to bring his own lunch and the club members will go to the camp in a group.

A gift was given to Mr. Chilcote in appreciation of his service to the club this year. Mr. Chilcote probably will not be teaching next year since he is expecting to be inducted into the Army in June.

RED AND BLACK GOLFERS BEAT GRANDVIEW QUARTET

Wednesday afternoon, Tiger golfers turned back a strong Grandview team by a score of 7½ to 4½, in a match played on the Indian Springs golf course. This course will be the scene of the opening of the district golf championship, which is to be held today. Upper Arlington, only victor over our boys this season, is the defending champion.

Circleville scoring: Woods, 79. Moon, 80. Ayers, 89. Geib, 83.

GUILD MEMBERS TO MAKE LAST TWO SELECTIONS

The school year is drawing to a close and the last selection list has been received by Miss Margaret Rooney. Pupils who have ordered these books regularly will receive a "free" book in addition to their order this month. The students who have received benefit from these books will thank Miss Rooney for her trouble in handling the money and orders for them.

Now to begin the last memorandum, "Prince Otto," written by a former contributor Robert Louis Stevenson, is contained in the list. The scene—a castle in a fictional state, Grunewald; the plot—a king trying to regain his usurped throne from his queen. A well-known story by Samuel Clemens (Mark Twain) follows. "Huckleberry Finn" is America's most popular young vagabond as he travels down the Mississippi.

Four of Henrik Ibsen's life dramas of simple people and everyday problems are in "Plays." Another easily remembered novel, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," written by Harriet Beecher Stowe, is the story of Topsy, Little Eva, and Simon Legree. This concludes the first list.

Robert Louis Stevenson makes his second contribution of the month with "The Dynamiter." The story is of an adventurer who meets two others of his kind and then three venture on together. A collection of "Poems" by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow is included in the second list. Third is the further adventures of "Soldiers Three" by Rudyard Kipling.

Completing this year's books is "Autocrat of the Breakfast Table" by Oliver Wendell Holmes. Reading this book you join the breakfast-table humorists discussing varied topics which interest them.

EDITORIAL

A SENIOR'S PROBLEM

What will I do when school is out? Shall I be able to go to school this fall? These two questions are probably the most important in each senior's mind. Whether or not some of the graduates go to school next fall depends on whether or not they have jobs during the summer. Some students deserve a higher education and are given a chance to gain it by means of scholarships and work.

Several comments heard around the school are "I can hardly wait until commencement" or "I wish I were out of school." Such remarks will not be heard next month after school is out. In their place you will probably hear "I wish I were going back to high school next fall; then I would know what is ahead for me."

Some students have already chosen what they expect to make their life work. Others are uncertain and perhaps will never find out. They will let something find them.

On June 3, the 1942 class will go out into the world. Life is before them. What will they meet? Some will meet happiness and success, others will fight against defeat and failure. If each student does the best he can where-ever he goes, he is sure to succeed in some way. Although he might not become prosperous, he may still meet success.

UNDER CLASSMEN RECEIVE AWARDS AT G. R. BANQUET

Five girls—two freshmen and three sophomores—were recipients of achievement awards at the annual Junior Girl Reserve Mother-Daughter banquet Thursday evening.

At 6 o'clock guests were seated in the social room of the high school to eat the dinner prepared by Mrs. Edward Helwagen and served by six members of the Senior Girl Reserves.

Immediately following the meal President Mary Virginia Crites welcomed the mothers and guests. Mrs. Heinhardt M. Crites responded on behalf of the guests.

Miss Alice Roof, club adviser, awarded necklaces to the five girls. They were Phyllis Clark and Ann Moeller, freshmen, Betty Lou Boggs, Anna Ruth Deffenbaugh, and Elizabeth Downing, sophomores. Miss Roof presented Mary Virginia Crites a past president's pen and commended her for her excellent work as president of the club this year. Mary, in turn on behalf of the girls, gave Miss Roof a gift in appreciation of her understanding guidance.

Following the presentation, the guests witnessed the ceremony of installing new officers for next year's club. Officers now installed are Eleanor Mast, president; Maxine Friedman, vice-president; Ann Moeller, secretary; and Francis Meinfelter, treasurer.

Guests stood to repeat the code and pledge of the Junior Girl Reserves and to sing the club song "Follow The Glean". After repeating the Lord's prayer, the guests departed.

CONCERT GIVEN BY TWO GROUPS THURSDAY NIGHT

Thursday evening at 8 p. m. the Civilian Defense Committee sponsored a concert in the high school auditorium. The concert was originally scheduled for the athletic field but because of the rain was held indoors. Despite that inclement weather a good crowd was present to see Circleville's first patriotic demonstration.

Circleville high school's band under the direction of C. F. Zaenglein played a group of five numbers. They were "Star Spangled Banner," "Long Live our U. S. of A.," "Trees," "Spirit of America" and "El Capitan March."

The Kwanette sextet presented the second part of the program. The girls in the group are Barbara Caskey, Mary Virginia Crites, Marvonne Henness, Carolyn Herrmann, Virginia Palm and Eleanor Thomas. Under the direction of Miss Marjorie Vorhees they sang "My Hero," "In My Garden," and "The World is Waiting For The Sunrise."

The band returned to present their second group of pieces; namely "Pigskin Pageant Parade," "Teddy Trombone," "Student Prince" and "Marine Band." Miss Marjorie Hunsicker's first aid class then presented a demonstration on what to do in case of a broken leg or a cut cheek.

Lastly the band presented another group—"Them Bases," "Rythmoods," "Teddy Bears Picnic," "Stormy Weather" and "America I Love You." The band played two encores "America I Love You" and "The Nobleman."

FACULTY WILL HONOR TWO OF ITS MEMBERS

John L. Chilcote Jr., biology teacher, and Robert E. Wilson, commercial teacher, will be guests at a dinner party at the Country club next Wednesday when the other members of the high school faculty entertain in their honor.

Mr. Chilcote and Mr. Wilson have both been deferred by their respective draft boards until the school year is over. Mr. Chilcote's home is in Saltcreek township, while Mr. Wilson's is at Ada, Ohio. They both report for duty in the armed forces early in June.

Committee in charge of arrangements for the affair is composed of Miss Margaret Mattinson (chairman), Mrs. L. S. Mader, Miss Margaret Rooney, Miss Eleanor Ryan and Thomas Armstrong.

held at Herrnsfield field, Chillicothe. Next Wednesday, the team will journey to Canal Winchester for a triangular meet with University High of Columbus and Canal Winchester.

BUCKS FAVORED TO COP BIG 10 TRACK HONORS

EVANSTON, Ill., May 16—Ohio State today stood on the threshold of an objective it never yet has attained in all its years in track and field athletics—a Big Ten outdoor championship.

Showing fine balance and perfect conditioning, the Buckeyes, paced by Captain Ralph Hammond and Bob Wright, yesterday qualified thirteen men for today's finals in the forty-second annual Big Ten championships at Dyche stadium, Evanston.

The numbers of men qualified by other schools were Illinois 8, Michigan 7, Minnesota 5, Indiana 4, Iowa 4, Wisconsin 3, and Purdue 1.

With Hammond and Wright at top form for the 120 high hurdles, 220-low hurdles and the sprints, it was expected today that the Buckeyes would outscore any other opponent by at least 30 points.

Illinois, judging by its showing yesterday, figured to take off second honors and Michigan, generally considered a cinch for second place, may find itself back of Indiana's Hoosiers at the finish.

With the wind at his back, Henry Vollenweider of Iowa turned up with the best performance of the afternoon's preliminaries when he sailed over the 220-low hurdles in twenty-three and seven-tenths seconds, two-tenths of a second faster than Wright did when he bagged the conference title for this event last season. Wright was second to the big Hawkeye in yesterday's trial.

WHIRLWAY AND ALSAB MAY MEET IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, May 16—Although the plans for it are still in an unofficial stage, a strong possibility was seen today that Whirlaway and Alsab, the two wonder horses of the last two years, will meet this Summer in a feature race, with the proceeds going to war relief.

Both the horses, in the normal course of events, would be in Chicago about July 12, and the race could be put on either at Arlington park, during the meeting which begins June 22, or at the later meeting in Washington park.

Owner Warren Wright has expressed his willingness to send the 4-year-old Whirlaway into such a race, provided Trainer Ben Jones agrees that Whirlway, winner of $371,811 in three years, is in proper condition and that arrangements are satisfactory.

DODGER FLAG CHANCES GO UP; REISER TO STAY

NEW YORK, May 16 — The Brooklyn Dodgers' pennant hopes were lifted today by the news that Pete Reiser, star of their outfield, had been reclassified into 3-A and thus seemed likely to finish out the season.

Reiser is married and also contributes to the support of his parents, who appealed his 1-A classification and the draft board returned him to 3-A.

Reiser hit .343 last season when he helped lead the Dodgers to the National league championship.

WINDY CITY PROMOTERS TELL MIKE TO STAY OUT

CHICAGO, May 16—The "generosity" of Michael Strauss Jacobs, New York boxing czar in offering to promote fight shows in Chicago for Army and Navy Relief, brought sharp repercussions today from fistie promoters on the Windy City front.

Bill Rand, the Chicago stadium boxing promoter, advised Jacobs to remain in the East while the mid-western promoters take care of staging fistie exhibitions in the Chicago area.

HITTING HURLER DOESN'T ENVY RUTH'S RECORD

By International News Service

James Tobin of Oakland, Cal., is sure of three things: he likes to lay hickory against leather at the plate, he likes to whiz 'em around the corners and he doesn't like the idea of working more than once every four days. Our man of the week might follow in the footsteps of Babe Ruth if he felt a little more inclined to swing at a ball more regularly.

Jim made history last week by clouting three consecutive home runs in one game, the fourth in his last five times at bat. At the same time he was turning in a stylish pitching job for the Braves to give the Bostonians a 6 to 5 victory over the Chicago Cubs. Big Jim drove in four runs himself and became the first pitcher in major league history to belt three round-trippers in one game.

Casey Stengel, the Boston manager, gleefully suggested that Tobin might become another Ruth.

"Not me," big Jim answered with a grin wreathing his face. "Pitching, I work only once every four days. If I played outfield I would have to work every day. When I was a kid a fortune teller told me not to work too hard. I've followed the advice ever since and have done pretty well by Jim."

ANGOTT WILLING TO GIVE STOLZ ANOTHER FIGHT

NEW YORK, May 16 — Lightweight Champion Sammy Angott today had a slightly sprained right ankle and a bruised right eye as souvenirs of his 15-round title bout against Allie Stolz of Newark here last night but said he was very willing to give the popular little Jewish lad another crack at the 135-pound crown.

"No, he didn't hurt me with that punch in the third round," said Angott. "He caught me flush with it but I knew what I was doing and signalled to my corner I would take nine. I would have lost the round anyway so I saw no point in getting right up."

Angott said he thought Stolz one of the smartest men he ever fought. "I was slow getting started but from the middle of the fight on thought I was in front all the way," he explained.

Charles Jones, the champion's manager, said he would confer with Promoter Mike Jacobs about a return match today but indicated it would probably be a week or more before any details are worked out.

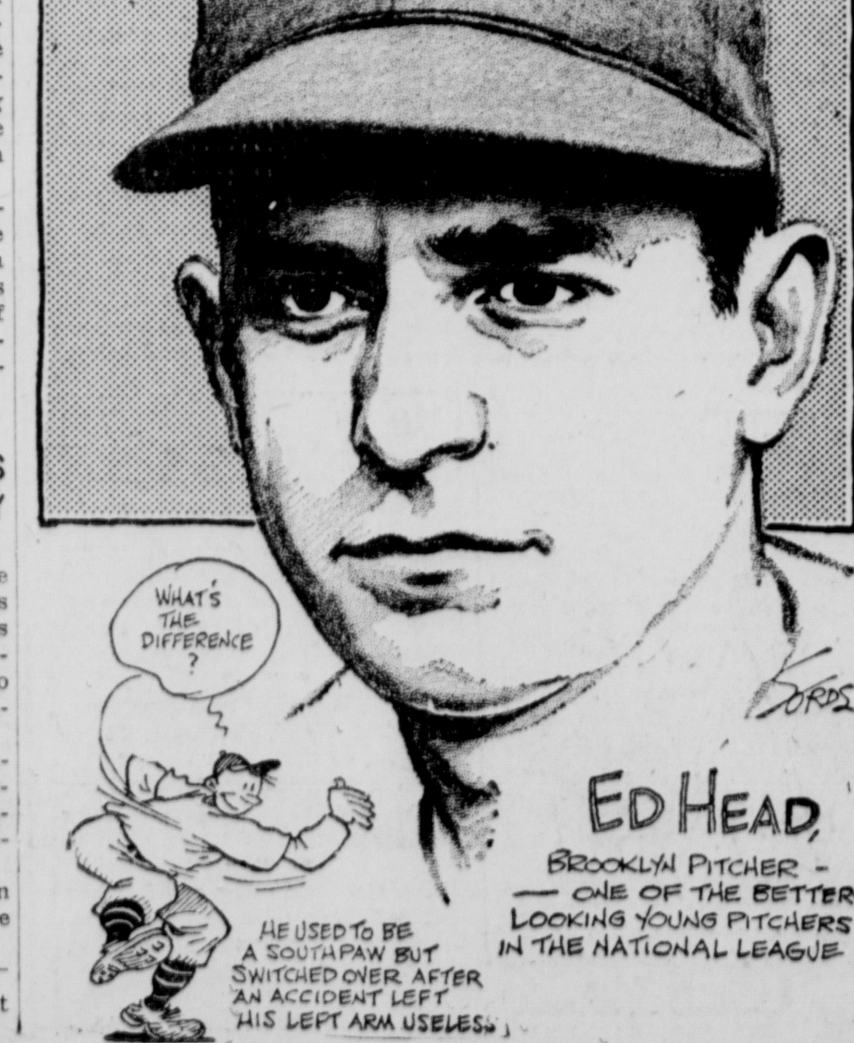

The Stolz dressing room last evening resounded with screams that Allie had been "robbed." His manager, Willie Ketchum, was roaring about a return bout and Promoter Jacobs told him: "Just keep hollering long enough and you'll get it."

Stolz said: "I thought my cleaner punching should have won for me. I did let down a bit in the late rounds. Maybe that's what cost me the fight. I'm sure I'll get him the next time we fight, and will probably knock him out."

Cardinals Defeated 3-2;
Brooklyn Adds To Its Lead Over Loop

NEW YORK, May 16—Boston

Braves have been getting some good hitting, better than fair pitching and have been hustling, and you can see the results of this combination in the National league standings.

They're in second place today, a none too secure second as they trail the Brooklyn Dodgers by 3½ games and lead the Pittsburgh Pirates by only ½ game, but that is still the runnerup spot and up to now the Braves have been a tough ball club.

They have blown some close ones they might have won, the meantime having been taking their share of the big scoring games and the tough ones. In the latter category comes that one of yesterday with the St. Louis Cardinals.

The Braves slammed out no fewer than a dozen hits off John Beazley and Harry Gumbert, bunched four of their hits to tie the score in the eighth, then won the game in the ninth, 3 to 2, by taking advantage of every break that came their way. They didn't make a hit, but an opening base on balls to Tommy Holmes was all they needed. A sacrifice, a bad throw and a fly did for the Cards.

Against the Braves' 12 hits, the Cards made only five off Al Javery, who score his third victory.

Wyatt Goes Route

The Dodgers meantime maintained their pace-setting edge with a second straight win over the Pirates, who were knocked down into third place, 8 to 3. Whit Wyatt went the route for the first time to score the win.

Rookie Willard Marshall, hit his fifth and sixth home runs of the year and two singles to drive in six runs for National league runs batted in leadership as the New York Giants set back the Cincinnati Reds, 13 to 5.

Marshall has sent home 29 runs to date as a member of the Giants' new wrecking crew, including Manager Mel Ott, who also homered yesterday. Ray Starr, Paul Derringer, Elwell Blackwell and Jim Turner all saw service on the mound for the Reds, who faced Hal Schumacher and Bob Carpenter.

A home run by Pitcher Claude Passeau in the third and a misjudged fly ball, plus a wild throw, plus a single all in the sixth gave the Chicago Cubs two runs and a 2 to 1 edge over the Philadelphia Phillies.

The American league was idle, with today's schedule calling for a double header between the New York Yankees and the Tigers at Detroit, and three single games, Washington at Cleveland, Boston at St. Louis and Philadelphia at Chicago.

BUCKS FAVORED TO COP BIG 10 TRACK HONORS

EVANSTON, Ill., May 16—Ohio State today stood on the threshold of an objective it never yet has attained in all its years in track and field athletics—a Big Ten outdoor championship.

Showing fine balance and perfect conditioning, the Buckeyes, paced by Captain Ralph Hammond and Bob Wright, yesterday qualified thirteen men for today's finals in the forty-second annual Big Ten championships at Dyche stadium, Evanston.

The numbers of men qualified by other schools were Illinois 8, Michigan 7, Minnesota 5, Indiana 4, Iowa 4, Wisconsin 3, and Purdue 1.

With Hammond and Wright at top form for the 120 high hurdles, 220-low hurdles and the sprints, it was expected today that the Buckeyes would outscore any other opponent by at least 30 points. Illinois, judging by its showing yesterday, figured to take off second honors and Michigan, generally considered a cinch for second place, may find itself back of Indiana's Hoosiers at the finish.

With the wind at his back, Henry Vollenweider of Iowa turned up with the best performance of the afternoon's preliminaries when he sailed over the 220-low hurdles in twenty-three and seven-tenths seconds, two-tenths of a second faster than Wright did when he bagged the conference title for this event last season. Wright was second to the big Hawkeye in yesterday's trial.

WHIRLAWAY AND ALSAB MAY MEET IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, May 16—Although the plans for it are still in an unofficial stage, a strong possibility was seen today that Whirlaway and Alsab, the two wonder horses of the last two years, will meet this Summer in a feature race, with the proceeds going to war relief.

Both the horses, in the normal course of events, would be in Chicago about July 12, and the race could be put on either at Arlington park, during the meeting which begins June 22, or at the later meeting in Washington park.

Owner Warren Wright has expressed his willingness to send the 4-year-old Whirlaway into such a race, provided Trainer Ben Jones agrees that Whirly, winner of $371,811 in three years, is in proper condition and that arrangements are satisfactory.

DODGER FLAG CHANCES GO UP; REISER TO STAY

NEW YORK, May 16—The Brooklyn Dodgers' pennant hopes were lifted today by the news that Pete Reiser, star of their outfield, had been reclassified into 3-A and thus seemed likely to finish out the season.

Reiser is married and also contributes to the support of his parents, who appealed his 1-A classification and the draft board returned him to 3-A.

Reiser hit .343 last season when he helped lead the Dodgers to the National league championship.

WINDY CITY PROMOTERS TELL MIKE TO STAY OUT

CHICAGO, May 16—The "generosity" of Michael Strauss Jacobs, New York boxing czar in offering to promote fight shows in Chicago for Army and Navy Relief, brought sharp repercussions today from fistie promoters on the Windy City front.

Bill Rand, the Chicago stadium boxing promoter, advised Jacobs to remain in the East while the mid-western promoters take care of staging fistie exhibitions in the Chicago area.

HITTING HURLER DOESN'T ENVY RUTH'S RECORD

By International News Service
James Tobin of Oakland, Cal., is sure of three things: he likes to lay hickory against leather at the plate, he likes to whiz 'em around the corners and he doesn't like the idea of working more than once every four days. Our man of the week might follow in the footsteps of Babe Ruth if he felt a little more inclined to swing at a ball more regularly.

Jim made history last week by clouting three consecutive home runs in one game, the fourth in his last five times at bat. At the same time he was turning in a stylish pitching job for the Braves to give the Bostonians a 6 to 5 victory over the Chicago Cubs. Big Jim drove in four runs himself and became the first pitcher in major league history to belt three round-trippers in one game.

Casey Stengel, the Boston manager, gleefully suggested that Tobin might become another Ruth.

"Not me," big Jim answered with a grin wreathing his face. "Pitching, I work only once every four days. If I played outfield I would have to work every day. When I was a kid a fortune teller told me not to work too hard. I've followed the advice ever since and have done pretty well by Jim."

ANGOTT WILLING TO GIVE STOLZ ANOTHER FIGHT

NEW YORK, May 16—Lightweight Champion Sammy Angott today had a slightly sprained right ankle and a bruised right eye as souvenirs of his 15-round title bout against Allie Stolz of Newark here last night but said he was very willing to give the popular little Jewish lad another crack at the 135-pound crown.

"No, he didn't hurt me with that punch in the third round," said Angott. "He caught me flush with it but I knew what I was doing and signalled to my corner I would take nine. I would have lost the round anyway so I saw no point in getting right up."

Angott said he thought Stolz one of the smartest men he ever fought. "I was slow getting started but from the middle of the fight on thought I was in front all the way," he explained.

Charles Jones, the champion's manager, said he would confer with Promoter Mike Jacobs about a return match today but indicated it would probably be a week or more before any details are worked out.

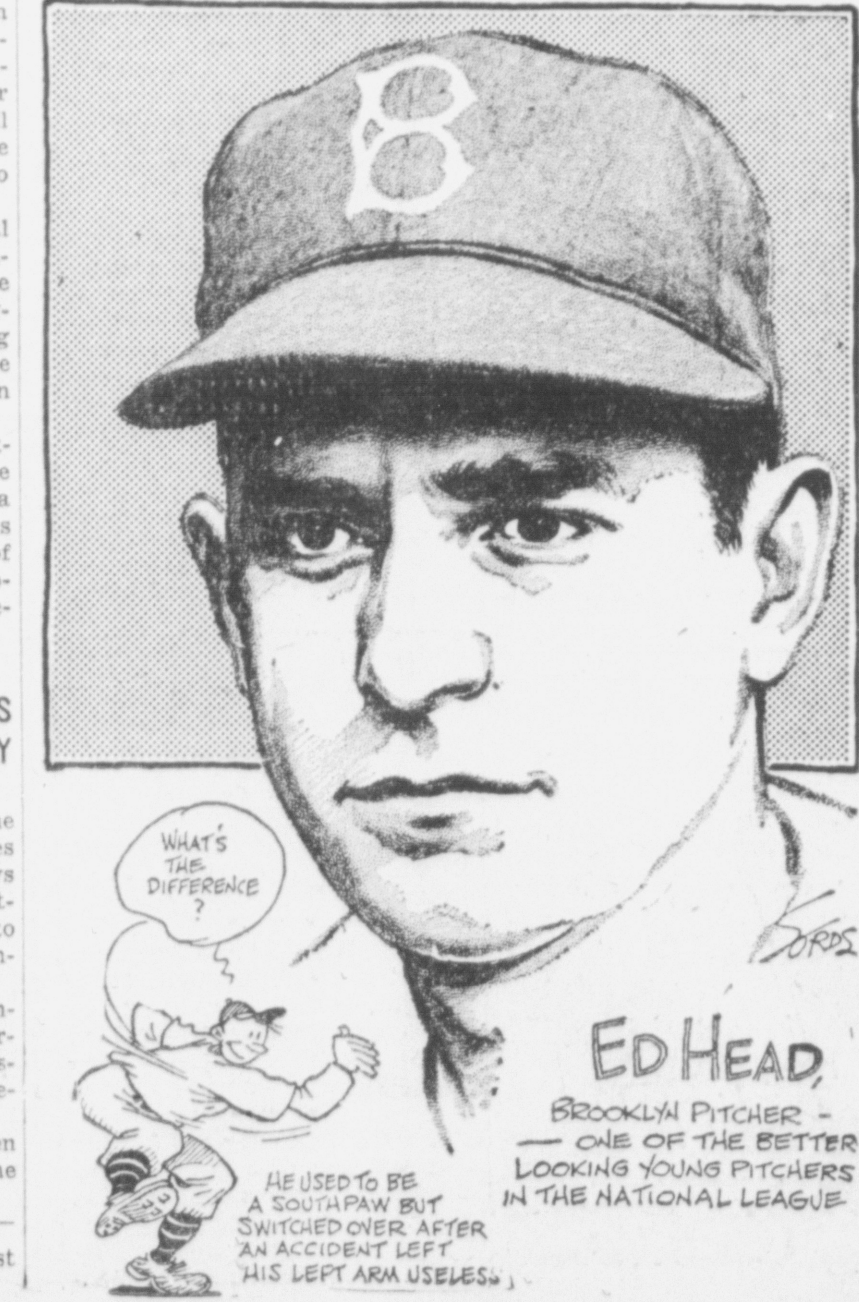

The Stolz dressing room last evening resounded with screams that Allie had been "robbed." His manager, Willie Ketchum, was roaring about a return bout and Promoter Jacobs told him: "Just keep hollering long enough and you'll get it."

Stolz said: "I thought my cleaner punching should have won for me. I did let down a bit in the late rounds. Maybe that's what cost me the fight. I'm sure I'll get him the next time we fight and will probably knock him out."

A. A. TILTS DELAYED

COLUMBUS, May 16—The American Association was to attempt to get going again today. All games yesterday were postponed. Today's schedule takes Kansas City to Columbus; Minneapolis to Indianapolis; Milwaukee to Toledo and St. Paul to Louisville.

BOSTON BRAVES GO TO SECOND PLACE IN N. L.

Cardinals Defeated 3-2; Brooklyn Adds To Its Lead Over Loop

NEW YORK, May 16—Boston Braves have been getting some good hitting, better than fair pitching and have been hustling, and you can see the results of this combination in the National league standings.

They're in second place today, a none too secure second as they trail the Brooklyn Dodgers by 3 1/2 games and lead the Pittsburgh Pirates by only 1 1/2 game, but that is still the runner up spot and up to now the Braves have been a tough ball club.

They have blown some close ones they might have won, the meantime having been taking their share of the big scoring games and the tough ones. In the latter category comes that one of yesterday with the St. Louis Cardinals.

The Braves slammed out no fewer than a dozen hits off John Beazley and Harry Gumbert, bunched four of their hits to tie the score in the eighth, then won the game in the ninth, 3 to 2, by taking advantage of every break that came their way. They didn't make a hit, but an opening base on balls to Tommy Holmes was all they needed. A sacrifice, a bad throw and a fly did for the Cards.

Against the Braves' 12 hits, the Cards made only five off Al Javery, who score his third victory.

Wyatt Goes Route

The Dodgers meantime maintained their pace-setting edge with a second straight win over the Pirates, who were knocked down into third place, 8 to 3. Whit Wyatt went the route for the first time to score the win.

Rookie Willard Marshall, hit his fifth and sixth home runs of the year and two singles to drive in six runs for National league runs batted in leadership as the New York Giants set back the Cincinnati Reds, 13 to 5.

Marshall has sent home 29 runs to date as a member of the Giant's new wrecking crew, including Manager Mel Ott, who also homered yesterday. Ray Starr, Paul Derringer, Elwell Blackwell and Jim Turner all saw service on the mound for the Reds, who faced Hal Schumacher and Bob Carpenter.

A home run by Pitcher Claude Passeau in the third and a misjudged fly ball, plus a wild throw, plus a single all in the sixth gave the Chicago Cubs two runs and a 2 to 1 edge over the Philadelphia Phillies.

The American league was idle, with today's schedule calling for a double header between the New York Yankees and the Tigers at Detroit, and three single games, Washington at Cleveland, Boston at St. Louis and Philadelphia at Chicago.

First Steps Taken Toward Organization Of War Chest Fund

C. OF C. TO SET UP UNIT OF 12 TO STUDY PLAN

25 Organizations' Delegates Meet In Court House To Discuss Question

Representatives of 25 welfare organizations of the city and county combined in the county court house Friday evening to discuss the possibility of setting up a War Chest in this community. Eldred Cayce, North Court street, acted as chairman for the gathering which was sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and an open discussion on the War Chest program was conducted.

After this discussion of the operation of the plan those present voted that Mr. Cayce establish a committee of 12 to investigate the set-up in other counties with authority to act in organization of a similar board here. This committee is to call another meeting of those interested in the near future for mapping out the solicitation campaign in Pickaway county and also to disclose the board of trustees that will disburse the funds to the various charitable and war agencies as they announce their benefit drives.

Judge Meeker Terwilliger, chairman of the 1918 War Chest in this area, detailed the operation of that group to the confab, announcing that after organization and establishment of a quota of $100,000 this group solicited $183,944.53 in the first two days of the drive.

A War Chest is a community fund set up once a year through solicitation of the public to be used as the county's share in the many benefit drives that are scheduled in war times.

Would Eliminate Solicitation
A measure of this type is considered beneficial in as much as it combines all drives into one, thus eliminating the necessity of strung out solicitation and also saving money in that there would be no surpluses go out of the county over and above the quota set by the group sponsoring the drive.

This group will solicit generous pledges from all persons in Pickaway county to be paid as the person wishes to banks throughout the area. After this is done citizens will not be bothered with any more outside drives for a year. Under the program when an organization sends word that its drive is expected to bring so much money, representatives will go before a board of trustees, show the merit of their cause and then the members of the board will grant them as much as they feel they deserve from the War Chest fund. Due to the huge solicitation in the last war the board had a surplus all the time and made three refunds to persons and organizations who had contributed.

With yearly drives from the Red Cross, China Relief, USO Army Relief, Navy Relief, Russian Relief, Benevolent Association, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Infantile Paralysis, Crippled Children and many others the public is over-taxed with pleas for contribution.

TWO GIRLS, BOY KILLED IN TRAFFIC ACCIDENT

CLEVELAND, May 16 — Two teen-age girls and one boy were killed and five others injured, three seriously, today when the automobile in which they were riding went out of control on a curve in nearby Hunting Valley, hitting a tree and ending up against a utility pole.

Hunting Valley Police Chief W. E. Freund said relatives identified the dead as Verna Bortz, 17, Mineral Ridge; Norman McNally, 21, Niles; and Ida May Burford, 17, Mineral Ridge.

CRASH INVESTIGATED

State highway patrol Saturday afternoon was investigating an automobile accident near the Lockbourne air base in Franklin county. Several injured were reported taken to Grant hospital, Columbus, and Police Chief W. E. McCrady said he had heard a patrol radio report that a call had been issued for the Franklin county coroner.

that men in their 20s and early 30s probably will do the fighting on the scattered fronts for at least the next 12 months.

To Comprise Bulk
This age group, even after older men are called, undoubtedly will comprise the bulk of the Army of 3,600,000 expected to be in uniform by the end of the present year.

While no figures on present strength of the armed forces are available, it is known that a huge Army of well-trained young men now is ready for battle duty and countless thousands of others will complete their final training by next November.

Extensive maneuvers to train selectees in all phases of warfare—with emphasis on offensive tactics—will begin within a week and continue until November.

Under the new set-up, all inductees will be transferred to the enlisted reserve corps, and unless they desire not to, will be permitted to return to their homes for 14 days to arrange their personal affairs.

"The new arrangement replaces the present system of granting inductees 10-day furloughs on request and is expected to eliminate any injustices which might occur to men inducted immediately following physical examination by the Army," officials said.

During the furlough period, the Army will furnish transportation, meals and lodging for the reservists enroute to the city in which the local board is located and from that point to the reception center, it was explained.

To Aid Older Men

This ruling, obviously, was made to "soften the blow" for older men and men with dependents who are expected to be called to duty soon and need more time to take care of their home problems.

Recently Selective Service headquarters advised local boards that beginning next month they should begin inducting men who registered February 16 of this year—the 36 to 44 age group.

Also, local boards now are under orders to reclassify as soon as possible into two groups all men who have been in class 3-A because of dependency.

Under this setup, class 3-A in the future will include men who have dependents but who are not engaged in an activity essential to war production or the support of the war effort. Class 3-B will include men who have dependents but also are working on war jobs.

Vichy Dispatch Announces Timoshenko's Men Reach Outskirts Of City

Vichy agency said, the Red army made a new breach in the German lines at Lozovaia, 70 miles south of Kharkov, with the objective of reaching Dnieperpetrovsk and cutting the German-held railway network feeding the regions leading to Taganrog and the Crimea. (Axis dispatches reported by Reuters (British) news agency from the German frontier crossed the Donets at several fresh points along the 70-mile front between Belgorod to the north and Smileyev to the south of Kharkov.)

The mid-day communique of the Red army high command declared: "Offensive operations in the direction of Kharkov continued throughout the night."

The communique reported stubborn fighting was still in progress on the Kerch peninsula.

As the "irresistible drive" of Timoshenko's southern armies moved steadily forward one spearhead of Soviet forces was reportedly fighting its way into the northeastern suburbs of Kharkov.

Tanks, Guns Taken

The continued successful advance, the communique said, netted the Soviets numerous German prisoners and many tanks and guns were captured.

A supplement reported heavy fighting in progress on the Lenin front where 1,200 Nazi officers and men were annihilated.

On the central front west of Moscow four German military trains were wrecked and 300 Nazis killed, it was said. Advanced units of the Red army were said to be battling the Germans in a fierce engagement in the vicinity of the railway station northeast of the city.

With the forward wedge of Timoshenko's forces assertedly within 10 miles of Kharkov, the main Russian armies appeared to be closing in on the city over a wide front extending from Belgorod in the north to Smileyev in the south, a distance of 70 miles.

(Unconfirmed reports from the German frontier said Timoshenko's troops had broken through the Nazis' immediate defense ring surrounding the city.)

The Moscow radio said the offensive before Kharkov was increasing in intensity at the passing of each hour as Marshal Timoshenko hurled in vast numbers of additional tanks and cannon-equipped Starmovik bombers. The Russian commander sent his troops surging forward after winning a gigantic tank battle in which he employed tank-borne shock troops heavily armed with automatic guns. The shock troops were followed closely by strong infantry units.

(A dispatch from Stockholm reported that two Russian tank columns which forced a breach in the Nazi defenses were quickly followed by motorized infantry under cover of artificial fog.)

The Soviets were said to be maintaining their marked air superiority, aided by Hurricanes, Tomahawks and Airacobras, despite the great numbers of Stuka bombers sent in by the Germans in an attempt to smash the Russian air strength.

While the Red armies were scoring their latest advances, announcements of new American aerial blows against Japan in New Guinea and Burma were emanating from Australia and India.

General Douglas MacArthur, from his United Nations headquarters in Australia, said American

CHIEF OF NEW WOMEN'S ARMY TO ASSUME POST

WASHINGTON, May 16—Mrs. William P. Hobby, Texas publisher, will be sworn in as director of the newly-created women's auxiliary corps in a brief ceremony at the War department today.

Immediately following her induction, Mrs. Hobby will hold her first press conference in the same room.

Appointed head of the WAAC yesterday, Mrs. Hobby is the wife of former Gov. William P. Hobby of Texas. Now 37, she is the mother of two children, and her husband is co-publisher of the Houston Post. Since last August Mrs. Hobby has been in charge of the women's interests sections of the War department's public relations bureau.

200 NORWEGIANS JAILED AFTER TROOPER'S DEATH

STOCKHOLM, May 16—The newspaper Dagens Nyheter reported today that 200 Norwegians had been interned in a Nazi concentration camp following the shooting of a Quisling (Norwegian Nazi) storm trooper.

and Australian fliers succeeded in starting huge fires in buildings during a surprise attack on the Jap-held New Guinea base of Lae. The attackers also pounded runways at an enemy airdrome, he said.

Irrawaddy Hit

Destruction of 15 Japanese planes on the ground by U. S. Army bombers during a recent raid on an enemy airdrome in Myitkyina, Burma, was announced in New Delhi. The Americans also blasted at runways and buildings at the Irrawaddy river port, 175 miles northwest of Lashio, a communique disclosed.

In the Chinese province of Yunan, Japanese forces continued their dogged advance toward the provincial capital of Kunming after capturing Tengchung and advancing to within 50 miles of Paoshan.

Mexico moved rapidly along the road to war with the axis following the sinking of a Mexican tanker by a submarine off the Florida coast. A declaration of war was ready for presentation to the Mexican congress unless Germany, Italy and Japan make "satisfactory" explanations.

Tankers In Question

A final satisfactory agreement between the United States and High Commissioner Georges Robert of Martinique was reported to be held up by debate over disposition of seven French tankers and several merchant vessels now in the Caribbean area. And in Europe, it was reported that Vichy Chief of Government Pierre Laval would talk over the "empire situation" at a meeting of his cabinet today.

Evidence that the Russians were not confining their heavy efforts to the Kharkov area alone continued to pile up with the report that 1,200 German officers and men had been "annihilated" on the Leningrad front and that four Nazi military trains had been wrecked with 300 casualties on the central front west of Moscow.
